Multitheoretical Conceptualization

1. Cognitive Conceptualization

- Identify specific thoughts or beliefs that mediate the relationship between activating events and consequences, including both feelings and actions.
- Distinguish between automatic thoughts that occur in specific situations and the intermediate and core beliefs that often generate automatic thoughts.
- Consider functional thoughts that might help the client.

2. Behavioral Conceptualization

- Identify specific actions that a client wants to increase or decrease.
- Look for relevant patterns of reinforcement and punishment.
- Recognize maladaptive responses paired with conditioned stimuli.
- Generate ideas about effective actions that might help the client.

3. Experiential Conceptualization

- Identify specific feelings that a client is experiencing.
- Classify emotions as primary, secondary, or instrumental.
- Recognize adaptive or maladaptive role of primary emotions.
- Hypothesize about primary adaptive emotions that might help the client.

4. Biopsychosocial Conceptualization

- Recognize the ways that physical health is impacting psychological functioning.
- Identify physical symptoms associated with psychological distress.
- Look at the way biological health may be impacting social relationships.

- Explore ways that sociocultural contexts shape actions and perceptions related to health.
- Consider health practices that could enhance mind-body wellness.

5. Psychodynamic-Interpersonal Conceptualization

- Look for repetitive themes in relationship episodes.
- Identify wishes, responses of others, and responses of self.
- Explore the origins of these core conflictual relationship themes.
- Think about functional relationship patterns that might help the client.

6. Systemic-Constructivist Conceptualization

- Describe past or present family structures, roles, or patterns.
- Identify salient features in the family belief system.
- Recognize how social systems have shaped the construction of personal meaning.
- Consider personal narratives that might support positive change.

7. Multicultural Conceptualization

- Identify cultural messages received from different cultural contexts related to a client's presenting concern.
- Explore identity development and acculturation experiences.
- Seek an understanding of the client's current worldview, including cultural values related to psychological concerns.
- Generate ideas about cultural values and practices that can be used to support therapeutic goals.

PSY-10. Attending to Subjective Responses

Attending to the psychotherapist's own subjective responses as a basis for understanding clients' interpersonal experiences and how they may be perceived by others

PSY-11. Resolving Conflicts in the Therapeutic Relationship

Working through interpersonal problems in the therapeutic relationship in order to resolve conflicts that were learned earlier in life

PSY-12. Modifying Relational Interactions

Identifying ways that current relationships outside therapy can be modified to change interaction patterns and to generalize lessons that have been learned in psychotherapy

PSY-13. Interpreting Dreams

Exploring dreams and helping clients discover interpretive meaning that illuminates thoughts or feelings outside of awareness

PSY-14. Adapting to Interpersonal Losses or Disputes

Helping clients adapt to significant changes in interpersonal relationships by grieving losses or resolving disputes

PSY-15. Encouraging New Relationships

Encouraging clients to form new relationships and reduce social isolation as a result of role transitions or interpersonal deficits

PSY-16. Learning from Termination

Using the end of the therapeutic relationship to enact a healthy separation, consolidate self-awareness, and support interpersonal changes

Systemic-Constructivist Psychotherapy Strategies

SYS-1. Understanding Problems within Their Social Context

Understanding individuals' psychological problems within the social context of families and other relational groups

SYS-2. Viewing Families as Systems

Viewing families as interactive systems in which all members impact one another through direct and indirect communication

SYS-3. Detecting Repetitive Interaction Patterns

Detecting repetitive interaction patterns and feedback loops that are used to maintain family homeostasis

SYS-4. Describing the Structure of the Family

Describing the structure of the family including subsystems, boundaries, and patterns of enmeshment and disengagement

SYS-5. Identifying Family Roles

Identifying functions or roles that family members frequently play in order to maintain family stability

SYS-6. Searching for Multigenerational Patterns

Searching for multigenerational patterns that demonstrate the way interpersonal relationships are influenced by extended families

SYS-7. Clarifying Family Belief Systems

Clarifying family belief systems and rules that govern the way families interact and influence members' thoughts, actions, and feelings

SYS-8. Giving Directives for Strategic Change

Giving strategic directives that alter a maladaptive sequence of behaviors in order to initiate change within an entire system

SYS-9. Exploring the Social Construction of Meaning

Exploring the social construction of personal meaning and helping clients recognize how families and other groups have shaped the way reality is perceived

SYS-10. Externalizing Problems

Externalizing problems by describing them as separate entities outside of clients rather than as defining parts of identity

SYS-11. Encouraging Adaptive Narratives

Helping clients tell their stories or personal narratives in new ways that support the possibility for change

SYS-12. Utilizing Clients' Resources

Utilizing clients' resources and symptoms to help them meet their needs in more adaptive ways

SYS-13. Constructing Solutions

Constructing solutions by building on past successes and discovering exceptions to the rules that support psychological problems

SYS-14. Orienting Toward the Future

Orienting clients toward the future and helping them imagine a time when their problems have been solved

Multicultural-Feminist Psychotherapy Strategies*MCUL-1. Viewing Clients Culturally*

Observing and understanding clients' thoughts, actions, and feelings from a cultural point of view

MCUL-2. Clarifying the Impact of Culture

Clarifying the impact of cultural contexts on current functioning, interpersonal relationships, and social systems

MCUL-3. Creating Culturally-Appropriate Relationships

Creating therapeutic relationships that appropriately match clients' cultural expectations

MCUL-4. Celebrating Diversity

Celebrating diversity in order to help clients accept and express their uniqueness

MCUL-5. Illuminating Similarities and Differences
